<sup>1</sup> The official name is 'Group of Asia and the Pacific Small Island Developing States'. It is considered to have 55 members when the total includes Palestine, which has been a member of this group since 1986. However, because Palestine has not been admitted as a UN Member State, for electoral purposes the group is considered to have 54 members.

<sup>2</sup> 'WEOG' has 28 full members. The United States, an observer, is considered a member of the group for electoral purposes.

<sup>3</sup> A republic of the Soviet Union from the time the Soviet Union attended the San Francisco conference until being admitted separately to UN membership in the 1990s.

<sup>4</sup> Although a republic of the Soviet Union, it attended the San Francisco conference as a separate State and later was admitted separately to UN membership.

<sup>7</sup> Poland became one of the 51 original signatories of the UN Charter, but was not present at the San Francisco conference because its new government was not yet organized.

<sup>8</sup> In 1991 the Russian Federation assumed the UN membership of the former Soviet Union.
